LUXE IN A CITY

As a benchmark of excellence in luxury, the Luxury Lifestyle Awards recognizes the excellence in service and quality of a brand's offering. As an honorary judge, we felt compelled, prior to casting our vote, to review the brand achievements from various angles, taking our time to evaluate their innovative take on providing both a luxury product and experience to their clientele. Nowadays, catering to a discerning audience means continuously innovating to stay ahead of the curve while still remaining true to the true essence of a brand's nature.

Wining such a prestigious award simply puts a luxury brand at the forefront of new luxury on a global scale. Winners must adorn their winning badge with pride.

THE LANGHAM
London

A HISTORY OF THE LANGHAM, LONDON – EUROPE'S FIRST "GRAND HOTEL"

Situated at a commanding position on Portland Place, at the top of Regent Street, The Langham has always been at the forefront of sophisticated and glamorous hospitality for over a century. From its opening date it didn't take long for such a landmark building to become prominent in the social calendars of London's elite, attracting Royalty, Statesmen, artists, writers and musicians from across the globe. As Queen Victoria was mourning Albert in solitude, many foreign potentates visiting London were left to find their own accommodation as they waited for an audience. The Prince of Wales continued to patronise the hotel so it was natural that visiting royalty and leaders should take apartments at The Langham. Other notable visitors included the composer Toscanini, poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow and even the author and creator of Sherlock Holmes, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. In 1890 The Langham celebrated its silver jubilee and was immortalised in writing by Conan Doyle using it as the setting for several Sherlock Holmes stories, including "A Scandal in Bohemia" published in 1889. In the book, the central character Count Von Kramm, was asked by Sherlock Holmes where he was staying, and the Count informs him, "you will find me at The Langham, under the name of the Count Von Kramm."

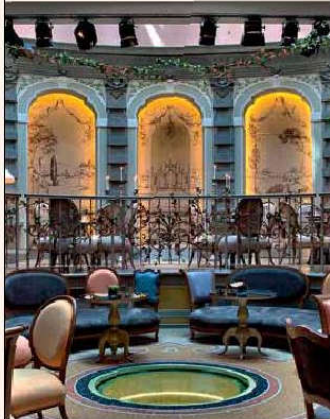

Despite The Langham's popularity with London's rich and famous during the 30's, the depression had a huge effect on the hotel. Shares fell and unsuccessful negotiations with the BBC took place, to buy the building for £500,000. In 1940 the BBC was granted a part tenancy for storage and effects, and later moved some of its offices and recording studios into The Langham in 1945. During the Second World War, The Langham became a venue for a platoon of soldiers and was turned into a local first aid post. In 1939-41 air raids and evacuations take their toll and in December 1940 bombs destroyed the West Wing, setting fire to the roof and fracturing the water tank, flooding the building and forcing The Langham to close its doors. In 1965, The Langham was bought in its entirety. The Palm Court housed the eponymous Palm Court Orchestra, BBC comedy acts such as The Goons with Peter Sellers were recorded at the hotel, the ballroom became the BBC Record library and the bar, the BBC Club.

The Langham, London was operated by the Hilton Group until 2004, when the contract expired and the management was passed to the Hotel's owning company Langham Hotels International, (the hotel arm of Great Eagle Holdings, based in Hong Kong). Under this new management began the hotel's re-awakening as one of the most important and stylish 5 star hotels in London and one of The Leading Hotels of the World.

ANCIENT TASTES

It was he along with his wife Souli Adami, a great supporter of the idea, who out of curiosity, admiration and respect for our ancestors decided to seriously pursue the matter. After all, they knew that gastronomy is an intrinsic part of people's culture. Their attempt was truly bold. Of course, being the first to create something is always bold. Fortunately, our legacy of ancient literature is very rich. Weren't these people eating? They are wondering. Not only they were eating but they had elevated food into sheer pleasure. Numbers only (21,000 citizens and 400,000 slaves) reveal that Athenians did not need to work as modern people do and so they would devote large part of their time to philosophy, good food and wine.

As research progressed their surprise and admiration grew bigger! Never would they have imagined they would find so much information on ancient Greek gastronomy. Enjoy your meal, or as ancient Greeks used to say "Evdipnias"

ORA D'ARJA

Marco Stabile is a young chef from Pontedera, Tuscany, who has quickly risen to prominence in Italy. He developed his skills of subtle invention whilst working in, and contributing to, some of Italy's finest kitchens, including the famed "Baghino" in Prato, "Il Salotto dei Chianti", the Antinori-owned "Osteria di Passignano", the Beringer Blass-managed "Cavaliere del Castello di Gabbiano", "Il Paese dei Campanelli" and "Il Chiasso dei Portici" to name a few.

His final stepping stone before opening Ora d'Arja, where he is both resident head chef and co-owner, remains his work at "Arnofto" in Colle Val d'Elsa (Michelin ) as the right hand man to the incomparable Gaetano Trovato.

Marco is an occasional and warmly welcomed teacher at some of the Italy's most celebrated culinary schools, such as those in Jesi, Montecatini Terme and "Accademia del Gusto" in Arezzo. He is a member of prestigious association "Jeunes Restaurateurs d'Europe" from 2009. He received one Michelin Star in November 2011.

"Ora d'Arja", or "Hour of Air", refers to the hour each day that inmates were given to exercise outdoors while

"guests" at the prison opposite our restaurant's first location. It now refers to time spent here by you, where we give our all to ensure a unique mix of tradition, innovation and elegance created by one of Italy's leading chefs and his passionate team (whose last major accolade was the appointment of a much-awaited and coveted Michelin star in November 2011).

We trust in the "passaparola", or word of mouth, from the people that matter most — our diners and, in turn, friends. Indeed we have spent precisely nothing on advertising since opening. With this in mind our international reviews, some of which can be found on this site, are particularly special to us as they show just how far word of mouth alone can travel in a relatively short time. Our aim is simple — to combine the integrity, depth and quality of Italian cooking with a belief in its continuous evolution. We believe that the key to standing the test of time is to never stand still. Furthermore, the historic context provided by our extraordinary city perhaps offers us an almost unique gift — the opportunity to remain young at heart for years to come.

"The rich flavors of Turkey are to be discovered at Raika" Raika restaurant, located at the terrace floor of The Marara Hotel, Taksim serves a great variety of Anatolia's regional specialties in an innovative and creative style. One of the oldest and noblest traditions of the Anatolian dining culture, "sharing" is perfected at Raika as a serving style. "Seasonality" is given top priority during menu preparations. The restaurant is also well-known for its rich variety of wine selection from different regions of Turkey as well as global wines.

Raika, offering a spectacular panoramic view of Istanbul, has a seating capacity of 190 diners and a 40- person capacity meeting room for special events. The bar section, with its Taksim Square view is ideal for afternoon meetings.

Designed by famous Turkish interior decorator Hakan Ezer who is known for his performed genuine architectural and interior architectural projects both in and out of Turkey (like Tom Aikens London etc), Raika offers a unique sophisticated ambience blended with quality jazz music for those customers who need a break from the rush of the city.

Raika has been crowned with International Food and Water Safety Program quality certificate ever since it was first established. The globally highly-rewarded system is a pure indication of how Raika values its' service quality and hence its' customers.

It would not be possible to classify the dishes we serve at Raika merely as "Turkish Cuisine" in any traditional sense of the word.

Adding innovative, modern twists to well-known presentation styles and favours through the use of less-used secret ingredients and different cooking techniques, we have availed ourselves of all the riches, open and hidden, of the Anatolian food culture. On our menu, prepared in accordance with this underlying philosophy, a range of delights, ranging from those of one of the world's most ancient dishes, 'ke kek', to a delicate filet of sea bass wrapped in swiss chard, harmoniously find their place alongside one another. Moreover, the very first criterion for all these favours is freshness and seasonality. One of the oldest and most long-established values of the Anatolian table culture, 'sharing', is enshrined at Raika as a serving style. Our extensive wine list containing wines exclusively from the Anatolian and Thracian regions, together with the incomparable panorama of the historical peninsula, rounds out and perfects your dining experience.

OPINION CIATTI

OPINION CIATTI

Since the fifties, the Ciatti family has been running the company that bears its name, an enterprise that has evolved and is still evolving over three generations. In the mid-eighties, Ciatti a Tavola was created, a line of design kitchens and accessories. The meeting between Lapo Ciatti and Bruno Rainaldi then led, in early 2000, to the creation of OC — Opinion Ciatti, a new company aimed at developing additional pieces and accessories for the home. Here furniture, chairs, mirrors and objects conceived by various major Italian designers are produced, important pieces such as Ptolomeo, which became soon the company's best-selling item. For this design, Bruno Rainaldi was awarded the "Compasso doro 2004". Lapo Ciatti, who represents the third generation, has joined the business and brings to it the family's entrepreneurial instincts and an education in Industrial Design. New challenges and new opinions. Today OC, of which Lapo Ciatti is also artistic director, is the expression of a way of understanding design as an experimental terrain and a laboratory for form.

MKV DESIGN

MKV Design is a greatly respected, award-winning interior architecture and design company which specialises in the world of luxury lifestyle. The company is recognised for its authentic, and consequently, timeless design which is completely individual to each commission and draws on the location of each project, its geography, history and past and present culture, bringing this into the interiors in a considered manner. MKV relishes opportunities to challenge the merely conventional and to refine the spirit of luxury, creating dream homes, unforgettable destinations and outstanding hotels that serve the test of time.

MKV Design was founded in London by Maria Vafiadis in 2000. Influenced by her international education and qualified as an architect, Maria set out from the beginning with an intuitive approach that embraced space and light as well as texture and colour in a way that responds to the varying human needs of sanctuary and repose, display and stimulation.

Current projects include: the refurbishment of The Royal Savoy in Lausanne and the Sheraton Park Lane in London as well as the creation of the new Grand Hyatt Abu Dhabi Hotel & Residences Emirates Pearl. MKV is also playing a key role in the renewal of the Swiss mountain resort, Burgstock, where it is designing a collection of ultra-luxurious apartments, The Grand Residences, as well as a new hotel destined to hit a heightened level of luxury for the resort and a magnificent new stand-alone spa.

MKV believes that, at the most luxurious end of the market, residential design is becoming virtually interchangeable with hotel design. This runs a lot deeper than surface styling and involves detailed space planning of the residence at the outset, much as if it were a hotel assignment, to achieve space perhaps for a pool or a spa and for such features as wine cellars and bedrooms with large walk-in wardrobes and en suite 'his' and 'her' bathrooms. Furthermore, premium residences are planned in a way practised for years by hotel designers to compartmentalise the various user groups and their activities - children's areas, staff areas, places in which to entertain, private space and so on.

The practice is very much in tune with the expectations of people living modern luxury lifestyles who tend to interpret luxury differently from the past with their ideas honed by global travel. As a result, luxury in an MKV project involves using the finest materials and introducing original pieces by artisans and artists as well as the skilful integration of the latest technology. It considers the interiors of drawers and the hinges on the doors. Nothing is left to chance and attention to detail is everything.

FILI PLAZA

FILI PLAZA

Fili Plaza manages in all his work to elaborate an emotive work taking care very much of the expressiveness of the materials that it uses, of sculptural jewels or of sculptures that turn into jewels. It combines the natural elements with exquisite sensibility providing them with a feeling and emotion, the telluric energies that contain the materials and the sensuality his forms.

Fili Plaza transports us to subtle worlds where some of his figures us arose certain introspection and other liberation, where the meeting and the embrace reduce the relations. The erosions of the life like the air that happens across his jewels and sculptures so that the light crosses his transparencies and as the colors they flood the same ones. But in addition, in his dualities, it teaches us that his jewels — sculptures can express and transmit feelings.

ELIZABETH

The building Elizabeth is located at 3 Elizabetes Street, the Quiet centre means the most respectable part of Riga. The Quiet centre means an excellent infrastructure along with rich historical heritage and convenient transport links; at the same time — the tranquility and ecology of parks, guarding this part of the centre from the rush of the rest of the city. The purpose of the project was to restore the facade, main staircase and main entrance to its original, historical appearance. Almost all the details of facade survived, which simplified the restoration work. The house is an example of late Eclecticism with tremendous external decoration.

A bright and rich facade, which reveals the aesthetics of Renaissance, also presents elements inherent in Baroque, Empire and even Art Nouveau. The decor of the pilasters and their capitals, balcony railings and turret finials show significant influence from Baroque.

LOFT TOWN

"Loft Town" is the largest loft project in Eastern Europe developed by UAB "Penkio kontinentu" investicijos, reminds a city in the city. An industrial building is reconstructed by installing residential and administrative premises: cozy apartments, spacious lofts, studios, and commercial premises. It is the first architectural solution in Lithuania when an industrial building is transformed into different types of spaces. Although it was possible to demolish everything and build multi-storey buildings, the project managers chose a much more complex way — it was decided to breathe new life into the former industrial building. They followed the concept — old into the new. A low-rise construction was deliberately chosen, thus keeping the existing building height and harmoniously joining an existing architectural composition. The high-quality residential environment is created; green spaces and recreation areas are equipped retaining the existing greenery at maximum and increasing the value of green areas (chestnut park of fifty years old is being handled).

PJSC ENERGOBANK

ENERGOBANK is one of the first commercial banks in independent Ukraine. At the beginning of its operations, the financial institution had close links with the power industry. It was at the initiative of state-owned energy companies supported by the relevant ministry that ENERGOBANK was established. This became a solid foundation for the development, and after several years, the Bank was the first among the industry-specific commercial institutions to be reorganized into a joint-stock company. In the early 1990s, acting as one of the founders of the Ukrainian Interbank Currency Exchange (UICEX), the Bank showed its intention to always be at the forefront of financial events. The Bank was one of the technological leaders of Ukraine's financial sector which became members of the S.W.I.F.T. system. As early as in the 1990s, ENERGOBANK serviced debit cards of payroll clients, offered transactions on special-name foreign currency accounts and issued its own foreign currency savings certificates. The Bank's achievements over its long history include the implementation of innovative solutions, expansion of its client base, membership in leading business associations (including the EBA and the American Chamber of Commerce), credibility among representatives of the expert community, and high positions in various ratings. Due to its ongoing development, ENERGOBANK has gained the confidence of over 7,000 legal entities and more than 60,000.

ENERGOBANK started providing services to VIP clients at the very beginning of its activity in the Ukrainian financial market. Private banking became a separate line of business in 2009; as a result, the Bank found itself among trendsetters of the domestic market.
